

P3.EXPRESS FICTION

A NOVEL ABOUT MINIMALIST PROJECT MANAGEMENT

THE ARTOPHYLE PROJECT CHRONICLES CONTINUE!

In this sequel to The Harmony Project with P3.express, you'll meet again all the familiar faces – Didi, now a veteran project manager entrusted with the delivery of a mega-project; Mirai, once a green horn and now a confident P3.express practitioner; Anan, the flamboyant CEO of Artophyle Inc. who never hesitates to get hands dirty, and Chief Detector Klebb, a cynic and a sceptic who doggedly pursues a cold case across half the globe.

“The shaman stopped humming and jerked to life, ungumming the eye slits. In that same instant, Klebb felt a barely perceptible shift in the thick air filling the yaranga, a new presence, and in a split of a second dove to the side, rolling away from the fire. Something thinly swished past Klebb through the air, and a primitively crafted arrow pierced the shaman’s throat. Blood sprayed in all directions.

Klebb pivoted to loosen three quick shots through the yaranga’s entrance. The Mauser boomed like a church bell, spewing fire and smoke. Large-calibre slugs tore gaping holes in the skin that served as portiere. In the ensuing silence, the detective heard snow squeak under quick steps, Klebb’s ski-doo engine roar up, kick into gear and take off at full throttle.”

Also starring in this novel are Yücel, a high-flying executive bound in a veil of mystery; Paithoon, a colourful local in a guyabera who is a meticulous schemer; Che, the uncontested crime boss of Artopolis, as well as shamans and sorcerers in supporting roles.
